

Grange Grant Funds Fort Hunter Park Signs

Linda Byers, president of Perry Valley Grange, visits one of the new signs recently installed in a newly developed section of Fort Hunter Park near Harrisburg through an $8,050 grant given by the Grange. A total of eight permanent outdoor educational signs were installed with the grant to help visitors learn more about the geology of the Susquehanna River, the history of Fort Hunter and local Native Americans, stories of river commerce and the Rockville Bridge in bygone days and information about fish and birds of the Susquehanna basin. The signs may be viewed any day from dawn to dusk in the park area along the Susquehanna River between Heckton Church and the boat launch.
